A DISQUISITION

On the Relation the Importation of Mexican Ores Bears to Our Mining Industry.

It is only repeating what every one knows and says that the present universel creation of trusts in one form or another marks a revolution in the world of trade as radical as any over effected and one which like all great commotions, will produce results, indirect and remote, which the authors themselves do not contemplate. Indignation is expressed freely against combination through the press and in the legislative halls of state and nation. Laws are made to punish it and ever political party professes to abominate it and pledges to abolish it; but still trusts accumulate in numbers and increase in influence. There are se few men of wealth who do not profit by trusts that few can be found to attack them possessing sufficient influ ence to be offertive.

The latest phase of the combination or trust, movement is towards corner ing the lead product of the country The promoters of this scheme, the wealthy Colorado, Schators, interested in mining and smalting, have been working assidnously for nearly tw years to have the importation of leaores from Mexico stopped. In this Paritic Coast Senutor-notable Sentor Stewart. They have at last sur ceeded in procuring an order from the Treasury Department which canno fail of accomplishing their purpose though it is worded in the most inger ions and incommon way, expressly disclaiming intent to consummate the very purpose for which it has been is sued. The disastrous results of the enforcement of this order upon the Southwest will be far reaching.

Until within the last three or hour years no ores of much less than 100 ounces in value could be shipped at a profit. The establishment of smelters along the border within this time that have been, owing to their ability to a cure lead and other theres from Mexico, able to work ores of as low grade as fifteen ounces at a profit to the shippers, has enabled hundreds of chloriders to keep at work and has done more to stimulate the mining industry than any other thing that could be named-if, indeed, it has not been Assuredly by take times of Tombstone district. It seen able to ship ore under fitty ounces at a profit Tombstone would have been a thing of the past-

The results, then, of the enforce ment of this order will be, what? Nine out of every ten chloriders, who are now working mines at a small profit will have to shut down for the benefit of the lead combination of Colorado, The larger mining corporations will be compelled to cease shipping the low grade ores that have been netting large number of men out of employment. The smelters at El Paso, and elsewhere along the border, will be compelled to shut down or move across the border if they wish to continue in business.

Who benefits by this widespread disturbance? Certainly it cannot be the men who can no longer work their mines. It cannot be the men thrown out of employment. It cannot be the mercantile or other business men of the communities affected. It can be only the half dozen millionaires of the lead trust.

Ore can now be shipped to Swansea. England, for a total cost of $18 per ton, by way of Nogales and Guaymas, which is far cheaper than the rate will be to Colorado or El Paso if this lead trust scheme becomes operative.

MINING NOTES.

Nothing of importance has occurred in this district for several weeks. A few days ago a discovery of a 20-foot ledge of copper ore was reported from the Dragoon mountains, but so far it has created no excitement. The mines C. W. Leach is down in Sonora, at in Sonora are attracting considerable

Of the mines in this district there is to drop, there will have been about little new to report. The Emerald is $500,000 invested in these mines, and working its usual force of men and that there is ore enough in sight to producing about its usual amount of more than compensate the owners for ore. One Burleigh drill is in operation on the lower levels.

The West Side is working eighteen men and producing a fair amount of average ore

The Big Comet has a very large body of low grade ore and is growing larger. It is thought that ore of a higher grade will be found at a greater depth. The work of cleaning out the porion of the Toughaut mine known as the Northwest Shaft continues, eight nen being employed. On the 27th nstant another shipment of twenty ons of screenings was made to El Paso, making the second shipment since cleaning up commenced.

At the Rattiing Boy sinking is yet n progress and a depth of 175 feet has een attained. Five men are at work, About two feet per day is being made.

The Omega is looking well and sutlicient ere is being extracted to pay

The Herschel is producing its usual amount of high grade ore. A shipment of fifteen tons will be made to Socorro to-day. Ben Cook, superinendent and one of the owners, will ecompany the shipment.

The Sterling Silver mill is running encoothly and satisfactorily and is a ave ago L. Van Burt, who owned a is interest to Sroule & McCrum, of San Francisco, and it is thought the ow owners will shortly resume work n this promising property.

The men working on the Sunset arsking out some very good ore and are naking more than expenses

Several other properties in this disrict are being worked and nearly all give promise of becoming good properties if sufficient work is done on

While the general outlook of our mining district is not as flattering as years gone by, yet it is by no means is bad as people often assert.

The benefit of the Sonors mining trade from this city is being felt, both n mining circles and among our merchanis.

Several outside districts are beginning to attract attention but not sufficient to warrant any excitement. The Copper Queen, at Bisbee, is producing as usual and bids fair to continue to do so for years to come.
